Abstract

This research is a descriptive paper of the usage of verbs valence in the Albanian language, a syntactic phenomenon quite interesting, but being treated a few by the Albanian language scholars. It is rarely used in Albanian linguistics. . Mentioned here and there in any study, essay, article, etc by our researchers, but they are not found in university grammars. This is due to the fact that the phenomenon in question belongs to recent syntactic studies. Valence term is borrowed from the science of chemistry, as the ability of an item to be connected to other elements. In this framework, it is viewed the verb as well, its ability to be connected with other patterns in the sentence. The paper is based on analytical treatment of this generative concept, but it will also be a treatment in comparative perspective with the concept of the verb reksion. The purpose of this paper is the description of the verb valence in Albanian language, namely to create a mini-dictionary of the verbs valence that begins with the letter 'A', making their classification in 1. Zero valence; 2.One valence; 3. Two valence; 4. Three valence. All this is meant to show the trend of Albanian language verbs to be connected with other patterns of syntactic structure. Verbs are mirrored through various works, harvested from literary works, various school and university textbooks, as well as various guides and manuals.Through this paper we intend to contribute (a little bit), in syntactic studies in the treatment of this very interesting concept in the field of linguistics, with the purpose to extended it in the future with the study of verbs in alphabetical order.
