

THE ROLE OF THE STATE IN RESPECT THE RIGHTS OF JUVENILES IN CONFLICT WITH THE LAW

Stela Fortuzi

Polytechnic University of Tirana, Albania
E-mail: sfortuzi@yahoo.com

Abstract

If we refer to the number of children deprived of their liberty as a result of global conflict with the law is considered to be not less than one million. This group is in contact with the authorities in the implementation of the law in many circumstances. The analysis of this study will be a mix between the obligations arising from the Albanian legislation and the facts and the reality reflected by official statistics for juvenile offenders in our country by analyzing this problem. This analysis will lead to the identification of problems of children in conflict with the law. The fact that minors are so much involved in criminal activities such as Frontline causes are social problems, we can mention here, poverty, family problems such as divorce, immigration, school dropout, drug use are those that have cur causes the increase of criminality. This article is designed by reference to the basic legal documents on research and development as a result of a move during the advocacy and training from various international programs. There was some support for juvenile prisoners by social workers and psychologists, as well as their education and in institutions where they are serving. Support and support from staff working at penal institutions for the rights of minors. An analysis of data from official sources in recent years for this phenomenon. After the data analysis will identify the most pressing problems facing this category as well as the end results of the study and some of the problems identified during the study.

Key words: Juvenile justice, Social problems, Commitment to the offences, Albanian legislation.