Abstract

NATO and the EEC were born from a project of peace, but have followed different paths. The first has to do with the collective defense of its members, and the second is an organization with different functions. In this paper presented an overview of the history of European integration in the field of foreign policy and defense. The focus is historical, but political consideration is under analysis. A part of this paper is entirely devoted to understanding the relationship between the EU and NATO. An overview of the development and evolution that NATO has adopted the concept of security in international relations allows us to understand how the EU is the only organization that really promotes cooperative security, which has been very difficult to achieve. Also, this paper aims to provide a comparative analysis of the European Security Strategy and the Strategic Concept of NATO's new strategy and National Security of the United States. Spurred by the current conflict in Ukraine we can understand many of the European Union and NATO, how these interacted in this case and how they interacted also in other similar cases. The violation of the sovereignty's country is intolerable by those two organizations not only to stay "loyal" to the new world order after the Cold War but also for lasting peace and above all sustainable, that is more than necessary for each country and for each international interaction. Although the European Union as a whole protects countries that comprise but not limited to, NATO is the incarnation of its military force. Any military intervention made by the army and its armed forces.
