

THE ORGANISATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE FAMILY

Agim Salmani¹, Emira Lama²

¹University of Tetovo, Gostivar, Macedonia, E mail: agim.salmani@hotmail.com

²University of Tetovo, Shkup, Macedonia, E mail: Lamaemira@hotmail.com

Abstract

Family is a historical variable category. It's formed and developed in the process of formation and development of private property. Throughout human history, it is affirmed as strongly adequate form and manner, not only for the inheritors of wealth, but also the physical and psychological safety of the individual and the members of the family group during their lifetime. Family is a cell of society. It is transmission in conveying habits, functions, and traditions. In the bio-psycho-social aspect, family is affirmed also as a parental double-motivation to make and have children as an evidence of the sound condition and ability of parents; at the same time as an opportunity of their social affirmation (parental boasting that children do have), personal safety (to be anyone there who will look after them in their old age) as a proverb says: "Who else more and better than the offspring of the soul". The purpose of this topic encompasses the importance of parents and their organization in the preschool children's educational process starting from tender ages up to further development. The overall style of living at household, the regime and the habits in family, as well as the social and the economic phenomena are primary for the education of their children. However, it is not natural not helping the family in all aspects and at most in the education of it's members, especially of the young people when considering the fact that these are bio-social force of the development of family, nation and entire society.

Keywords: Education, family, children, society, behavior